State Showcase: Early Adopters

Every state will take a different approach to implementation of the Family First Prevention Services Act. With uncertainty still around the updated IV-E plans already submitted for this year, and even more questions coming from states deferring to 2020 and beyond, how do you know what to prepare for? Hear both the provider perspective and an overview of the landscape as panelists explore some of the overarching questions you should be asking in your state as system reforms head your way.

Meeting the Needs of Childhood Victims of Sex Trafficking

The FFPSA includes in its exception to the two-week federal payments rule congregate care settings that provide specialized services for childhood victims of sex trafficking. In this session we will explore the particular needs of children who have been trafficked or are potential targets of sex trafficking. The discussion will focus on risk factors and best practices in terms of language, assessment, treatment approaches, and outcomes. Participants will leave with an understanding of how to establish programs and utilize community supports to promote recovery for this vulnerable population.

Kinship Navigator Programs: Preparing to Meet Your Match

Support for kinship families is a critical piece of the puzzle for child welfare. Under FFPSA, jurisdictions can receive ongoing federal reimbursement for up to 50% of their expenditures to provide kinship navigator programs that meet the evidence-based requirements of promising, supported or well-supported. Hear lessons learned from existing programs, and strategies to help your organization prepare to develop an effective kinship navigator program.

Child Welfare- SUDs- Reunification: Partnership model under FFPSA

Fitzgerald Room, Garden Level

A new light has been shined on the importance of family-based residential treatment programs through the passage of FFPSA. Join in on a roundtable conversation on how a community based provider from Maryland has been serving women with substance use and mental health disorders and their at risk children for over thirty years. How does this partnership work and can it work for the families you serve? Can FFPSA help?

- 10:15am – 11:45am Evidence Based Practices: Strategies, Challenges and Collaboration
- Much is yet to be determined about how the evidence-based requirements for prevention services will be met. How should providers – and states and counties – be thinking about investing in evidence-based practices? How can we work together to make sure that the most broadly useful programs and services are reviewed by the Prevention Services Clearinghouse? What issues and proposals should be taken to the Children’s Bureau for resolution? Join this dynamic conversation about both the mechanics and the advocacy.

The Future of Care: Surrounding Families with Supports and Services

New York State plans FFPSA compliance by 2021. The NYS Coalition's for Children's Behavioral Health has undertaken an effort to identify the services and methods providers can employ to increase a child's chances of remaining in home or other community-based settings. The Coalition identified which services are valued most by parents, caregivers and kin. NY expanded their Medicaid State Plan and added entitlement services, like care coordination and Child and Family Treatment and Support Services (CFTSS) that pull former waiver services into available entitlement options.
